mms healthy

Contributed by admin
Tuesday, 02 March 2010

It is a rare thing indeed for a product to come along that addresses much of our illnesses in one fell swoop. But alas, there is now such a product, and it is called miracle mineral supplement. This product was discovered by a man named Jim humble upon a expedition deep within the forests of Central America in which they were searching for gold deposits. Half way into the expedition two of the expedition members fell ill with the most deadly form of Malaria that exists, and without immediate medical attention death was a very real possibility. Luckily for the two stricken men Jim always had travelled with a product called sodium chlorite or better known as liquid oxygen. Jim quickly gave each member a large dose of this substance and within hours both were up joking around about their near death experience! Not long after this, the formulation was perfected – thus becoming known to as mms